GRAIN MARKETS

WEAKEN AND DECLINE. CONDITIONS NOT SO FAVOR-

ABLE.

Wheat Held Up Quite Well and Lost Little, but Coarse Grains Declined Sharply.

It was something of an "off day" yes-terday in the local grain pit on 'change, markets all being more or less in the umps. Trading was of a quiet character and developments few and generally uninteresting, especially from the standpoint f the bulls, nothing of an exciting nature ming to the surface, and most of the day very tame and uninteresting set of mar-cis were experienced. The cheaper grains were the ones to suffer the most, support aving been almost entirely withdrawn them. Advices, as a rule, were bearish ed they broke away sharply, oats showing es for the day of from le to Pac, while went off 2ge to 5sc. Wheat, on the ther hand, did not show the signs of disse arrived, the market was found to have covered most of the day's losses, and losed steady to be lower only. Specula-ively, the situation was quiet.

recovered most of the day's losses, and closed steady to be lower only. Speculatively, the situation was quiet.

Although locally the wheat market did not have the backing in the way of news and buying that it had the day before, a buillish sentiment still prevailed, and prevented the market from following the example of corn and oats. At times considerable weakness would be developed, but the market showed remarkable recuperative powers, which, in connection with certain developments late in the day, enabled traders to hold the market well in hand and close it very little different from the day before. What the market lacked early was favorable cables, the only one received, that from Liverpool, being disappointing, as it reported only be advance since last Friday, which was not considered as being at all in line with the gains made on this side. The receipts, here, however, were smailer at only 130,000 bu, and the market opened be higher at 85% for Sept., while Dec. was unchanged at 17%. When other markets weakened and declined on cables and line weather in the Northwest, buying support here was withdrawn in a measure, and Sept. went down to 85% and Dec. to 15%. Bradstreet's figures were bearish, reporting a good increase in the world's visible. The market, however, held up well. Sept. selling off to 65% and then reacted to 85% being and 50,000 bu, at Chicago, Late in the session the market again weakened, and at close, Sept. sold at 85%, while Dec. was offered at 15%c, which was the same as it closed the day before, and, therefore, exhibited evidence of weakness and heaviness all through the day, showing but few redeeming features and closing at a loss of meanly a cent. There were no rains of consequence shown by the weather man or change, in the corn-raising States, clear and cloudless skies being indicated nearly everywhere, with an absence of extreme heat. Crop news on the other hand was very unfavorable, receipts were locally and sept. rallied to 13%c, and Dec. to 35%c. Another soft spot was developed an

While the Liverpool market showed some idvance, it was disappointing when compared to the bulge in wheat here yesterday, heavy movement to the other side would show a decrease when the scaports were show a decrease when the scaports were heard from. These considerations in a restricted market had their natural effect at the beginning of business. Sept. opening be to be under yesterday, at 70% to 70% or overing, a small line of short wheat the price was run up to 70% within five minimutes of the opening. For some time thereafter the tene was weak, sympathy with corn and the heavy receipts being depressing factors. Selling was on an extremely moderate scale, but prices did not steady till Sept. was quoted at 60% a. A sharp trally to 70% followed reports of heavy export sales; but the absence of confirmation of these reports resulted in an equally sharp decline to 70% and the close found the market weak. Sept. 1/20% cunder yesterday at 70% 70% c. Some attention was given tidings from the Northwest, where it was said the weather had wrought some damage. It was claimed that in some sections where 25 buper acre had been expected from 8 to 15 bu, only would be thrashed out. Exporters reported 25 loads taken. Seaboard clearances in wheat and flour were being thinned. In the day's trade spots of strength were observable, but this was due to wheat chiefly. When wheat turned easier the corn market took the cue with such readiness that it was soon influencing the former market. Sept. soid between 50% and 37% and closed it under yesterday at 50% c. Receipts were 53 cars.

With purely local conditions governing sentiment, the oats market ruied dull and 50% c. Receipts were set of the usual gloomy tenor, the general feeding that all drought damages had been liberally discontined was the ruiling factor in the martiely small, a condition tending to weaken the hands of holders whose margins were being thinned. Southern Cattle—The final register of quarantine consignments displayed a total of 118 cars, part of which came in late yesterdax. The offerings included also some that were not negotiated yesterday. It was after noon before the last of the receipts were registered. The supply contained some very decent offerings of steers that went at $3.85 to $4$ and a very fair representation of cows, one full train of ten cars going at $2.90 it was a rather inactive market, but trading was done on a practically steady hasis although it was extended throughout the morning and up to the last must be the close, with weighing continued for some time thereafter. Bulls and cows were mostly steady, though some of the latter displayed a weak tendency if not quotably changed, Veal calvee, of which there was a light variety.

With purely local conditions governing sentiment, the oats market roled dull and narrow. The corn weakness was, of course, influential, but there was sufficient local support on the breaks to hold prices comparatively steady. Sept. sold between 25 and 24½c, and closed 3c lower at 34½c.
